Body work for thinkers

South Korean dancer Aguug Gunawan prepares for the hybrid-art theatre piece The Buddha My Body – A Palimpsest. Australian, South Korean and Indonesian artists have come together to create the production, which draws on the talents of dancers, musicians, visual artists and playwrights. Australian dance fellow Tony Yap says the show will help develop a discussion around intercultural, interdisciplinary work in Asia. The Buddha My Body is on for four nights starting on Thursday, August 20, at fortyfivedownstairs in Flinders Lane.
